GV Bandwagon

By Nicolas Heady, Michael Christensen, and Ryan Korteway

Accomplishments Planned

Implement our tutorial page

Hear back from the lawyer and put our app on the app store

Start gathering feedback from users

Add / Update our UI

Sprint 3

We would like to launch the app and solicit feedback from users during Sprint 3. In this window we would continue to make changes based on user feedback and bug reporting.

🏷 Labels ▾   ⋈ Hide Pull Requests   🔥 Burn Pipelines ▾

📅 Start: Mar 22, 2017 Edit   Due: Apr 3rd, 2017 Edit

Legend: weekends · ideal · completed

71 Total Story Points

53 Completed Story Points / 18 Remaining Story Points

8 Total Issues and Pull Requests

4 Completed Issues and PRs / 4 Remaining Issues and PRs

Accomplishments To Date

Got our menu fully working with a trips history page, a current trip/ride summary page, and implementing our accounts page to pull down and save everything to Firebase.

We implemented Google Places into our app, thus allowing our users to search for their destinations.

We now have Custom Pins with an information window with custom actions. Said actions and buttons in the ride summary page allow for riders and drivers to cancel rides/offers if necessary, riders can pay drivers.

Features Planned for the Last Sprint

Putting in the tutorial before launch.

Focus some attention on Scheduled/future rides if they stay in the app.

Testing the Local Notifications and their actions.

Implementing the whitelist and blacklist management buttons in the Ride Summary page.

Setbacks

Not hearing back from our legal help and finding out about new laws and regulations on ridesharing apps

Most of the testing of our app can now only happen in joint sessions (one rider, one driver) and said sessions revealing a few common Firebase issues.

Setback Solutions

Meeting as a group frequently to test our Realtime Pins and Firebase as we do trial runs of our app.

~~Repeatedly reaching out to the Small Business Office trying to reconnect with our contacts.~~

Forget the Small Business Office, we have a meeting scheduled with Linda Chamberlain, GVSU Chair of Entrepreneurship and Innovation, to discuss with her our app and how it stands legally in her eyes.